James A. Van Fleet said today the 8th Army has quit-chasing Communists in North Korea but will continue to block Communist aggression. The United Nations ground commander gave no clue to possible future Allied operations.

He left unanswered the question: Will the U.N. Allies stand where they are now, just a few miles north of the Red Korea border, or will they strike out for specific targets?

Afte rhe spoke, 8th Army headquarters clamped down the most restrictive news regulations since censorship was im-posed last December.

There were two possible reasons for Van Fleet's announce ment:

70-Hour Week Not Unusual For King

It will probably astonish you to know that the King when in health works 70 hours a week; that he is seldom in bed before 1 a.m. and always up again at 7.30.

But there are many things about the King that astonish those close to him, many things that you ought to know.

There is, for example, a recent week. It was hectic by any standards. It had the more athletic and younger King of Denmark smilingly describing himself as wilting as he changed his clothes for the 10th time.

And for King George VI it came after a week-end of Festival of Britain opening ceremonies and processions. Most of us, watching from the Royal touchlines, have turned to our neighbors with the question: "How would you like to be king?" The answer is usually "Not on your life!"

and yet we don't know half the story.

A king's duties—as our King sees them—mean more sheer hard work than is generally fashionable today.

They mean, behind the pomp and glitter, long hours at a desk. They mean reading and assessing masses of docu-ments, hearing and deciding on hundreds of reports and pro-

ONE WOMAN'S DAY By NANCY HODGES

MANSION HOUSE MEMORIES

LONDON.—Because he is to visit Victoria late this summer —together with his very beautiful young wife—my readers may be interested in learning something about the official residence of the Rf. Hon. the Lord Mayor of London, Mr.

Alderman Denys Lowson, which we have twice visited, once for a private dinner party and the second time for luncheon. Known as the Mansion House, it is in the City, that little mercantile oasis in the heart of London over which the Lord Mayor has sole and absolute jurisdiction—so much so that even the King has to halt and ask the Lord Mayor's permission before entering its portal at Temple Bar.

CENTURIES OLD

m UILT}$, about 1750, by the great 18th century architect, George Dance, the Mansion House is a palatial, porticoed house, redolent of centuries of history. During the war it suffered, along with the rest of the City. A Nazi bomb badly damaged its roof, and another devastated the service quarters —and repairs have not yet been completed.

But that is not visible to the visitor, and its spactous and lovely reception rooms, with their magnificent tapestries, priceless paintings and "objets d'art," great crystal chandellers, exquisitely carved and painted ceilings, immediately impress you with their air of sumptuous elegance.

RESPLENDENT LIVERIES

IN SUCH a setting, it was natural and fitting to see the footmen resplendent in ornate liveries. At dinner, we were waited upon by six footmen, three of them wearing liveries of scarlet velvet, heavily embellished with gold braid gold epaulettes and cords, with white knee-breeches, and powdered hair. The other three wore similar liveries of rich blue velvet.

All wore an elaborate crest upon their left arms, the crest of the present Lord Mayor. Each successive Lord Mayor. and they only serve for one year—has his own livery and crest for his footmen—who, incidentally, also act as outriders on State occasions, when he travels in the huge and highly ornamental Lord Mayor's Coach.

HISTORIC GUILDS ON THE LARGE and ornamental menus which each guest at the dinner received, the cover was adorned with an engraved copy of an eld print of the Mansion House, dated 1783. And inside, the engraved crests of all the City Guilds formed a novel border. This was a reminder that City Guilds Companies, and Lord Mayors are inseparably

Although City Guilds were known to have existed as far back in British history as King Alfred—he of the burned cakes—the earliest known charters were granted to the Weav-ers and Saddlers about 1130 A.D. Today there are 79 Livery mpanies, divided into the trade Guilds and the craft Guilds

QUAINT OCCUPATIONS AS THEIR NAMES denote, they perpetuate many a trade A or craft which has long fallen into the limbo. Among them are the Salters, Scriveners, Armourers and Brasiers, Apothecaries, Bowyers, Broderers, Cordwainers, Loriners, Pewterers Girdlers, Pattenmakers Tallow-chandlers Gold and Silver Wyre-drawers, to mention but a few.

Membership in these ancient and picturesque associations is a prized privilege, for they have a long and honored history of benevolent and educational activities. Many of them have founded public schools and institutes throughout Great Britain, provided university scholarships and awards, generously supported hospitals, churches and orphanages.

PRIZED PRIVILEGES

BOT AS WITH many another against institution, they aling to their centuries old claim to certain rights and privileges. For instance, the Gardeners annually present a magnificent gift of flowers to the Lord Mayor, and to Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth on the anniversaries of their contents. BUT AS WITH many another ancient institution, they cling ueen Elizabeth on the anniversaries of their coronations.

The Fruiterers send a gift of choice fruits to the Lord Mayor every year—and as he, too, has to contend with the trying limitations of food rationing, I am sure the gift is Mayor every year—and as ne. too, has to contend with the trying limitations of food rationing. I am sure the gift is doubly welcome in these times! On special occasions, the Fanmakers present exquisite fans to feminine members of the Royal Family. And I've no doubt other Guilds present appropriate gifts typical of their ancient calling when the occasion warrants and the ever-growing shortages permit.

Escort Vessel Keel Laid

VANCOUVER (CP)-The keel of the first of three $8,000,000 anti-submarine escort vessels for the Royal Canadian Navy was laid Friday at the Burrard Dry Dock in North Vancouver.

It marked another step in Canada's $71,000,000 navy ship-building program.

Wealth force will bring to the 8th Army an increase in strength far greater than can be indicated by bare statistics of additional troop reinforcements.

Meanwhile, the newly-formed British 28th Field Regiment of Royal Engineers left Benghazi early this week for active service and who may be and who met him for his care.

Admiral Creery described the vessel as a new departure in naval design, the result of close co-operation between British, U.S., and Canadian naval authorities. Canada is the first to build them.

concerned about this little event, as well as concerned in it. The other day a young friend in a far distant city sent me a manuscript for revision. He appealed to me, as an old playwright, to rewrite his play for him

"Teen-agers Through the Ages."

FOR ITS purpose, it wasn't a bad little

NO, ALL that amazed me was the fact that teen agers should have a caval-cade of themselves, as if they were a different species. I fear it's the grownups who have encouraged them in this When I was a teen ager, I wanted to be a man, and tried (maybe ridiculously) to imitate one. Today things are different, I think it a bad sign. The slogan today is "Gather ye coke, and cavalcades-of-the-teens while ye may, for tomorrow we'll have to work, shudder," It seems a funny preparation for tife any power of the standard of the standard of the standard of the same of the standard of the same of th for life, somehow, I should say, off-hand, that the secret of life is to treat infants as if they're drunk, to treat the young as if they're grown-up, and to treat grown-ups as if they're kids. But

THERE WAS one other thing that staggered me a little. In these two scenes, portraying the Teens of the 18th century, the typical teen-ager was Marie Antoinette, who was married at 15. She was in her teens all right, but hardly typical. If I am ever asked about the ns of Egypt, I shall write a couple of hot scenes about Cleopatra. should have a message for somebody, some place, if not in the schools.

that a man should have several bottles of spirits in his house. You may be sure that the police do not lay a charge unless they have other evidence as well. But in event, this evidence is no good. Without rationing, a man is entitled to pack his house with spirits, if he is so foolish. And the police have no right to ask him how he plans to use it. That is his affair, not theirs.

For all they know or can prove, he may be planning D.T.'s as is his demo-cratic right. (A relative of mine once had D.T.'s and said it was an interesting and educational experience none should miss. He enjoyed every minute of it. But his was a mild case. And since he'd had T.B., it enabled him to write a book "From T.B. to D.T.'s," a thing no all of us could imitate.

I am disappointed in our criminal lawyers who haven't bothered to throw this fallacy out. And I am disappointed in our police for not raiding the homes of rich men who own cellars, since owning a cellar is evidence of boot-

YOU'VE HAD A BUSY DAY

Junitying The Bridge Question

IN VIEW OF THE CONTROVERSY clouding the Point Ellice Bridge ques-on, there is merit in the suggestion of ex-alderman R. H. B. Ker that a definite opinion on the span's safety be obtained from an independent and competent bridge engineer. To date, the only authoritative statement has been to the effect that with the 10-mile an-hour speed limit and 14-ton load limit enforced, the bridge is safe for traffic.

Admittedly the 10-mile speed limit is an inconvenience, particularly to light cars which might safely cross at substantially faster rates. Obviously a new structure, capable of handling four-lane traffic, is desirable. A hundred and one improvements are desirable in this city Under existing conditions, however, desirability is not a compelling argument. Canada needs steel for defence work, and Victoria faces high borrowing costs if it wants to float a loan for a bridge or for any other purpose.

What is vital is public safety. No economy could be justified if the span proved unsound and permitted a repeti-tion of the disaster which once occurred there. It might be logical enough, more over, to see that regulations laid down for present use of the bridge are main-tained even if enforcement necessitated posting of a guard, or at least police

Were conditions much more stable than they are at present, agitation for a new bridge, whether or not one is essen-tial, would be easily understood. Conditions, however, are so far removed from being normal in such matters as steel procurement and financing, that public safety becomes virtually the only point to consider, unless the case for a new bridge as a defence measure is presented much more convincingly than has yet been done.

In the circumstances, Mr. Ker's proposal for an independent and definite assessment of the bridge's strength de serves support.

We Have To Participate

IT IS ONE OF THE CHARACTERISin the days of Rome's circuses—that for every person engaged in some game there are a hundred of more in the grand-stand merely watching. It is also a characteristic of our times that these spectators are often vociferously expert in the games they watch. They can tell the performers what they should have done, can criticize and find flaws in almost any play.

That is a right spectators assume for themselves when they pay the price of admission. It does not make them bet-ter practising athletes. It does not improve their physical condition. But it is Something of the same spirit was indicated in a much more serious field the other day by Canada's Minister of irs, Hon. Les son, during his speech to the Ottawa Rotary Club. Said Mr. Pearson:

"Just as dangerous as a 'fifth column' of enemy agents is a 'sixth column'— those who don't care about citizenship "The greatest danger to Canada may not always be from without; it may be from within because of our carelessr There are those of us who would let the other person be a good citizen while we go after the profits and the pleas-

All Canadians cannot be public serv-ants in the way Mr. Pearson is a public servant. He wouldn't expect that. What he is entitled to expect, and with him all those who practice democracy, is some show of participation by Canadians in the activities of democracy. It is not a game to which our people can pay an admission and become spectators only. Everyone has a part in it—whether that part be a star's role or a simple, obscure performance of ordinary citizenship duties. Unless we are prepared to let rigor mortis of a last week-end's athletic event, we cannot afford to be grand-standers only, or even enlightened Monday morning quarterbacks.

The Old Brock

THIS may possibly be a breach of confidence. In fact, I'm pretty sure it is. But as a journalist (now called a newspaperman), I realize that the public interest must come before my own delicacy. And oddly enough, in this connection I do not mean the worst interests of the public, but the best. I am actually

Brock I don't quite know why I should be called a playwright; I have written (long ago) a few skits for revues, and stuff like that. Anyhow this play of his was two little scenes from a high school show called "Caval-cade of the Teens." It was subtitled fragment. It was meant to amuse and instruct high school kids. I couldn't have written half so good a piece when I was in high school myself, if that is saying anything. (All I ever wrote was a sonnet about the janitor which got a somet about the jaintor which got round to his own ears, and he turned off the heat, which punished everyone else as well as me. Oh, yes, and a sonnet about one of the big boys, who would have killed me, only the other big boys liked it so much, they formed a body-guard for me, bless their simple hearts.)

IS considered evidence of bootlegging

I SEE that the new income tax will force the little man to strike for higher wages with which to pay this tax. Two fallacies here. I don't think anyone is little when he gets a lot better pay than I do, nor can I think of him as little when he pretty well controls every thing. Nor can I call it a tax on him when he proposes to turn it into a tax on everyone except himself, by means of still higher wages.

Vic Peeps' Diary

Beinn A Chronicle Of Our Times

MONDAY, 28th-Up betimes and selected my most colorful neckerchief to complement my gay spirits. Descended to break my fast with eggs, broken into boiling water and seasoned with India pepper. A stroll through my grounds, and Lord, how the weeds do flourish so that I must peer closely in some parts to perceive the flowers. And so, not without a backward look or two, to the city where the week-end's accumulation of business matters awaited. There was my day's good nature sorely taxed, but emerged triumphant over many petty tasks to sustain me to my club for lunch. And this I have noted on many occasions, that the lighter the spirits the lighter the work, though I know not why this may be. Was sagacious in my ordering, for which my stomach was thankful, and later walked through the streets to observe progress in construction of the new city library. And verily it doth appear a most laudable enterprise to house the from the form of the ages for the form of the form of the ages for the form of the form of the ages for the form of the form of the form of the ages for the form of house the knowledge of the ages for our use and enjoyment. Would that our heads could so easily and permanently be filled. At night did sit long by the window, it-being chill outdoors. And so to bed, with as full a measure of contentment as this century may provide.

TUESDAY, 29th-For breakfast did experiment with a toasted, crisp and granulated food the which its producers do boast hath many magical properties, not the least that it will add or subtract weight, whichever the consumer may require. By carriage to my place of business, where the reckoning of accounts did harass me, for these be days of enforced walking for a spirit which, economically, would soar. For lunch a cheese dish, very tasty and piping hot, for which I later paid in inward aches. In the afternoon to the baths, where Master George Grant does teach the roung their strokes and those seat task. young their strokes, and there saw much childish merriment as children essayed tests set by Sir A. Thiessen, he of yeoman build and prime looking in skin-tights, though thick through the middle. To us came Captain Walter Boyes, chuckling of old tales when the alchemy of the R.A.F. changed high brass to purest gold in the crucible of war. In came Mistress Norbury, vexed that women's costumes, no more than scant wisps of color, should excite whistling from males. So away, yet I wonder what else whistling's for. Did speak with Master Brock Robertson, whose feet appear solidly on the ground although his occupation doth put him well over our occupation doth put him well over our heads, he being skilled in the placing and repair of roofs and tiles. And so home, with a thought to the difficulty of keeping a roof over one's head in these unsettled times.

WEDNESDAY 30th-Up early and joyed to see from my window, the waves dancing, a rich day, smelling fine of May from the flowers in my garden. With Master Gordon Bowes by carriage to my place of business, he speaking engagingly of Mt. Brenton, an estate in which he has some interest and on which, it seems, he hopes the Government will spend some moneys. But in my office disconsolate to find books strewn around and the upset that has followed moving still making chaos. With my wife to dine, richly. My lunch was cheese soup creamed, a stalwart beef and kidney pastie and deep apple tart. So back to my books and did make some order out of chaos. Home to a cold dire ner and out again to visit Master Wil-liam Muncy, he smart in homespun Harris. To his home came sundry ladies, to honor one among them. Mistress Agnes Lyttle, who has so served Master Muncy's school that others would give her presents, which they did. Bright chatter of a ball to be held following an athletic contest at the school, and copious supper, and so, again by carriage home to read abed a book of blood a thunder, which is trash, but I like it.

THURSDAY, 31st-Another fair day so fair I went early to the garden to see my peas near flower and my beets, planted by my wife, poor wretch, strong and flourishing. At my place of busi-ness, much better order, so that I worked diligently. To me came Sir Walter Luney, pleased that a portrait is de-manded of him and hoping one may be found in our litter. I talked with him of building and the mistakes of workmen who do not point out the mistakes of contractors who overlook the mistakes of architects. In the city did encounter Master Thomas McGimpsey, who appeareth not to age no matter how many summers intervene between our meetings. In the afternoon I went with Master James Burridge to try his fine, light yellow carriage, which rolled effortlessly over the far hills of Saanich and left me much in envy. Yet he preoccupied with sundry business and it seemed the joy of riding was nothing to the anxiety of his return to law offices where he so out Master Herbert Davey, he a King's Counsel learned and astute. There I left him to visit Kilburger, a master watchmaker, who has set himself to make my timepiece right, he, a busy man, jest-ing of too much time on his hands to rest. Talked briefly with Driver George Thompson, who laments so many boys would fain play games, but know not how and are forgotten by those who did play games and now busy themselves elsewhere, shunning the sport they loved since there's no money in't.

FRIDAY, 1st-A most admirable June day to start the month. On setting foot in the road, did encounter Master Leslie Fox and his good wife who brought me in their carriage to my place of business. They both anticipating their forthcoming journey to the East for which we hope good weather doth attend them. At my office did converse with Master Gray of Prospect Lake, who doth amuse himself and others with the fashioning of humorous verses, a pleasant pastime, methinks, for an observer of life such as he. And so into the city, where many are still perturbed by what they term The Smoke Nuisance, the which they have borne these many years but now declare intolerable. And it doth seem a great misfortune that a city with such pure air as this should suffer defilementeven in a cause so importantly affect-ing our prosperity. Lunched meagrely on crab and tart, which moderation doth keep me awake afternoons. In the evening walked long in the garden, which showeth grand colorings, and watched the passing parade of ladies whom summer hath also brought to beauteous per-fection in their costumes. And so to my bed, well content with life.

THE TENET, that loyalty to free peoples is not incompatible with loyalty to one's own country is one which gains increasing importance the more widely it is accepted. That is one of the implications of Mr. Pearson's gecent Citizenship Week address.

The virtue of the kind of Canadianism the External Affairs Minister has in-mind is that its projections extend out-ward into the field of international affairs; it is in happy contrast to the narrow and, one would hope, old-fash-ioned nationalism which looks only inward upon itself.

The newer concept of citizenship, if accepted by enough persons in enough countries, could give invaluable strength to freedom-loving peoples that are standing out against the forces of totalitarian domination. For this reason present evidence of a growing, active interest in the right kind of Canadian citizenship is

The late Dr. Temple, Arch. the world, bishop of Canterbury, defined it: "T worship is to quicken the conscience b the holiness of God, to feed the mind with the truth of God, to purge the imag-ination by the beauty of God, to open the heart to the love of God, to devote the will to the purpose of God." In a world clouded by hideous ugliness, bru-talized by ten thousand cruelties, misled by prejudice and falsehood, where we are pulled about by conflicting loyalties and competing interests, such worship re-stores our sanity and purifies and uni-

It is a pity not to be awake to beauty. Alice Freeman Palmer organized a club of little girls in the slums of Boston. One July day, when all the environment seemed stifled with foul smells and squalor, a little girl carrying her baby sister asked, "Tell how us to be happy?"
It seemed utterly hopeless when Mrs.
Palmer advised, "See something pretty every day." Yet that little girl came back to report that one day she saw a sparrow taking a bath in the gutter, another day she saw the sun in the baby's hair, and so there was always something pretty to see.

It is a pity not to be alive to friendship. A man said to me the other day, "I have no friends." He was a prominent citizen of eastern Canada. Without friendship your life is not half a life. It is shut out from the most rewarding, happiest experience of living. In this world most men walk as strang-ers. We are afraid. We have an inferiority complex. We are selfish. We are pompous. So we are alone.

Did you ever read the story of the fairy, beautiful as the flowers and wicked as Satan, who decided to take revenge upon a country which slighted her? She took the words, "I love_you," out of their vocabulary. Lovers were baffled. Parents were dissatisfied in their children's relations. Poets could not write. A sadness clouded all life. Then the fairy fell in love herself and restored the words. So love and joy came back to the world. It is a pity not to be awake

'Human Sea' Fails (New York Times)

IT appears now that one more Chinese Communist offensive in Korea has failed disastrously. It is our proclaimed policy to inflict losses on the aggressor so grievous that he will become convinced that his course is the wrong one and will be willing to make a peace.

The losses in the latest attack have been heavy, even for a foe that has shown a callous attitude toward the sacrifice of troops. It should be apparent by this time that the "human sea" tactics of the Communists will not prevail in the face of superior United Nations firepower and that the United Nations forces will not be driven from the peninsula.

If the present Communist losses bring Peiping to its senses and bring an end to Peiping's aggression, there can be a discussion of a Korean cease-fire. The United States, however, has set its face against bribery or surrender as a part of

Dignity And Authority Of Parliament Suffer When Mr. Speaker Fails To Enforce The Rules

By MICHAEL BARKWAY, Correspondent of Saturday Night and the Victoria Daily Times, From Ottawa

MR. SPEAKER read the House of Commons a lecture this week. It was well received by the members and even better received by the press correspondents and officials whose duty it is to listen to the members.

Mr. Ross Macdonald, who became Speaker after the 1949 election, has already von a greater respect than any Speaker has commanded for many years. The earlier record was not too good. He is a lawyer from Brantford, Ont. He looks the part to per-fection. Tall, slim, bald, hawk-faced, his kindly

But the Speaker of the House of Commons is very much more than a figure-head. He is responsible for seeing that the House conducts its business in an orderly and becoming manner; and among other things that means ensuring that the minority views get all the pro-tection afforded by the maze of prece-dents which are called the Rules of Procedure. All governments are anxious to get their business through Parliament a quickly and smoothly as possible. All governments are tempted to regard the queries and objections and criticisms of the Opposition as factious, stupid or un-important. The Liberal government of Mr. St. Laurent, with its colossal majority, is no exception,

No other minister, probably, would go as far as Mr. C. D. Howe who summed up his attitude in a recent broadcast when he said: "I don't have to amuse Parliament." But even Mr. Douglas Abbott, the debonair Minister of Finance, asked the House the other day to give second reading to a bill which still hadn't been distributed. He was stopped in his tracks by Mr. Gordon Graydon, a friendry, mild Conservative who asked quietly: "Has anybody seen this bill? The Rules of the House protect the Opposition against such government impatience, provided the Speaker has the courage to uphold them. Ross Maconald's prestige rests not on his appearance, but on the fact that he tries to be fair and impartial. He is, of course, a Liberal; but the Opposition parties feel that he is conscientiously trying to uphold the rights of the House rather than the fortunes of the government.

So members on all sides were kindly

A Sense Of Humor

(Sewell Stokes in BBC London Letter) SO often the man who treats life as a comedy is more useful as a member of the community, I think, than the one who sees it in terms of tragedy. A sense of humor, you see, helps us to preserve a balanced view of things; and it is when that balance is upset, that the trouble starts—the kind of trouble the world the House that some schoolchildren from his riding were in the gallery. Worse still they would "call the attention of the House" to the fact that some hockey team from their riding had won a championship, or that the best apples in Can-ada came from their district. Such per-formances, said Mr. Speaker solemnly, were not matters of privilege.

Secondly he told them what questions they might and might not ask orally at the beginning of each session; and thirdly he repeated a previous lecture against reading speeches. "The House of against reading speeches. "The House of Commons," he said, "is not a debating society nor an assembly which is gath-ered together to listen to the reading of

SAANICH GARDEN SPRINKLING

Do Saanich Water Consumers wish to have Sprinkling Restrictions?

Unrestricted use of garden sprinklers is causing severe shortage of water.

Huge quantities of additional water are being supplied daily through the new reservoir system, but dozens of miles of small pipe are quite incapable of conveying this extra water and still supply all properties in Saanich:

Customers are advised to exercise discretion themselves and consideration for others in their use of sprinklers. House consumption should come first and sprinkling operations should be restricted to the hours of darkness and early morning:

Unless customers voluntarily restrict their afternoon and evening use of sprinklers it is likely that onerous sprinkling restrictions will be enforced.

Brownie Hurler Blanks Bosox For Seventh Win

Birtoria Baily Times SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1951

Now is the time to hang a "for sale" sign on the St. Louis Brown's Ned Garver.

Only 13 shopping days remain for Boston, New York, Cleveland and Detroit before the June 15 trade deadline arrives. If the DeWitts say the word, the sky's the limit.

The new surge of enthusiasm for Garver follows his 4 to 0 shutout of the Red Sox last night, ending Boston's 10-game win streak. It doesn't take any deep thinking to see Garver's value. The Browns, a few percentage points removed from the cellar, have won only 12 games. Garver has won seven.

Just to make it stick, Garver Chambers was knocked out in drove home two runs with a fourth-inning single to embarrass Mickey McDermott. It was the first time anybody blanked Bos.

BURLINGTON, Colo. (AP)-J. W. Gernhardt will conduct his own funeral tomorrow.

Gernhardt, 75, is doing it to make sure he'll have the kind of service he wants after he dies, and so he won't "be a lot of trouble" to others then.

He will serve lunch first to the press and others. Then he'll preside over services in the local armory.

The services will be recorded, then played after his death.

"That way," Gernhardt says, "I'll know what's going on."

Drop In Prices Of Some Foods Slows Index Rise

OTTAWA (CP) - Prices of 0.5 points to 146.2 from a record butter, pork, oranges and cab-bage dropped in April, slowing the cost-of-living index to its smallest advance in six months. The Bureau of Statistics re-ported Friday that the index went up 0.2 points in April, white the group down but higher electricity rates in Brit-ish Columbia prevented a sub-stantial decline.

All foods didn't go down in price—eggs and beef, for in-stance, went up—but those that dropped went down enough to be main factor in halting the reak-neck advances of the index based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100—went up 2.1 points and in February it went up 4.5 — the highest index jump in history.

Besides food the only significant drop in April was in the fuel and light sub-group. The first drop in this group in seven nonths, the sub-index went down went down into Egypt to share food and prosperity with his famous son, Joseph, the Jews have been wanderers. Today countless thousands of Jews wander across the face of the earth seeking homes, lost loved ones and above all, peace

WEEKLY SERMON Jews Still Wander Like Ancestors By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D. Since Jacob, driven by famine,

With heavy burdens on their back and anxious prayers in their hearts, many are the counter-parts of those who fled or were parts of those who fled or were captured after the fall of the Southern Kingdom of Judah. There are other parallels be tween the modern-day Jews and their ancient ancestors. The res in the glowing pages of Ezra and Nehemiah, is being duplicated today in Palestine. When Jerusalem was com pleted, there were many well-to-do Jews who had established themselves in Babylon and preferred to remain there. We have various lands today where Jews are doing much to encourage and support the new Israeli state but are reluctant to leave newly found friends Among those held prisoner to day by despotic rulers or desperate circumstances, there exists the same inexorable sadness described in the 137th Psalm which captures the despondency of im-prisonment and exile,

IT MAKES YOU think that for most people, the best thing about being a tourist is ceasing to be one. And it makes you realize, too, that some of the most lasting impressions of tours arise not from the spectacular events you attend away from home, not from the scenery that may take your breath away, not may take your breath away, not from the garish pleasure attractions, but from simple little meetings with people who accept you as humans and guests in their country. They make you feel at home. They give you that sense of belonging and of being an individual human being.

Maybe that point of view ought to claim more attention from tourist trade boosters who want to roll out the red carpet and spread the tinsel for our summer visitors. Probably those visitors would feel a whole lot happier and enjoy their stays here more if they could be taken out of the artificial mold into which some agencies try to compress them. If you look behind the foreign automobile license es that proclaim the tourist, you'll find, oddly enough, that there are people sitting in the car—people, plain ordinary people, who probably like the same things you like.

IT'S ALL TOO easy to size up tourists as folk who think they're at a carnival, who have climbed onto the horses on the merry go-round and can only be happy if they're clutching for the brass

It's a little saner to believe that they have come to visit us because they'd like to see our part of the world, the grandeur and beauty that nature has loaned us on a short lease, and to meet our kind of people.

They're not going to receive a very convincing impression if we get together and merely put on an act for their benefit. And it's a little less than hospitable if we look at them through eyes that ignore the individual and seek only to penetrate his pocket-

We could, if we wished, build bigger and better merry-go-rounds. But we, the rower plant's capacity can if we wished, build bigger and better merry go rounds. But we, too, have to live here. We can't leave when the tune of the calliope loses its appeal. And to meet the growth of the discontinuous control of the calliope loses its appeal. Month of June Echoes to the Wedding March

This first month of summer is traditionally a wedding month . . . the time of year when a bevy of attractive brides walk up the aisles of Victoria churches to speak their marriage vows. . . There is music in the air as the lilting strains of Lohengrin's famed music float out on the gentle summer breeze! . . . Quintet of brides on this page, who were married within the past few weeks, epitomize the perfection of beauty that will be repeated over and over again as the wedding march continues throughout the month of June!

While their husbands attend onthly meetings of the Society of American Magicians, the magi gals get together in their own sleight-of-hand sessions. Various nembers demonstrate effects and then show the others how to do them. Later, they watch stage tricks of which the secrets are not

It all started when a group of wives met to sew and talk while their husbands attended meetings. From that grew a national or-ganization of 385 members in 15 active "rings," devoted to the promotion of magic. The first formal meeting was held in 1939 at the home of Mrs. Harry Houdini. "It's a wonderful hobby to keep you young," said Shirley Parke, wife of a New York florist, who is also an amateur magician. "I'm not an expert, but I get a nendous kick out of magic. And that is one of the things that qualifies her for member ship, which is strictly limited to "people who really care about magic."

"We don't want any dead wood." says National Secretary Ruth Presto—she whisks off the little Clinton, one of the few profestic-on top—and she is in a sunsionals in the group, who assists her husband on the stage.

Becoming a proficient magicienne is not easy, says these magigals. Real skill demands good co-ordination, sense of timing and tireless practice, for "it's one thing to know how a trick is thone and quite another to do it skilfully yourself."

Prices Go Higher Volume Stays Low

By HARRY YOUNG, Times Business Editor

The fears that existed last week that the bull market was coming to an end have been at least temporarily dispelled. During the past week recoveries have been made in all sections of the Canadian and United States markets, the index figures climbing faster than at any time since the and of January.

The rise, however, was accom panied by an extremely low vol-time. On Friday the New York turnover of 980,000 shares was the lowest of the year, and the tempo was slow even on the days when the price upsurge was

This state of affairs is just as puzzling as it was when in the previous weeks the market had fallen without any great selling pressure.

In the Canadian markets the upward trend has been uninter-rupted during the five trading days; while New York which was on holiday Wednesday advanced at a slower tempo during the re-maining four days.

The paper and pulp companies have become acknowledged as the leaders of Canadian industrials. and it was under their strong movement that the market went

The volatile paper index on Montreal rose 75.60 points during the week, finishing up at 832.95, which is only 44 points behind the high spot of the year.

The advance, however, strong in all sections, and the oronto industrial index in rising 328.16 rose 13.52 points on the week, and so brought itself with in 10 fairly easy points of estab-lishing a new high for 17 years.

On New York the upward trend was less spectacular with the industrials gaining 4.04 points at 249.33, but this puts them fairly safely over the year's low of 238.99, which is regarded as a danger mark.

Canadian Papers TORONTO (CP) - Canadian daily newspapers were praised today for helping Britain build up her export trade to Canada during the last two years.

Sir Cecil Weir, chairman of the United Kingdom Dollar Ex-port Board, said in an interview that without the assistance of the newspapers, his task of building up British exports in keeping with policies of the British government would have been "almost impossible."

Besides making advertising space available to acquaint Canadians with British products. Canadian papers through their news columns and editorial pages had emphasized that only by purchasing British goods could Canada count on selling to

One of the more entertaining spots this weekend should be "Trans-Canada Theatre," heard tomorrow at 6 on CBR. An old Tyrolean legend, little on this continent has been chosen by Producer Rupert Caplan. Adaptor Charles Wasserman came across the legend, in fragmentary form, in the only one of his father's book which has not been translated into English. Jakob Wasserman was a noted Austrian novellist and biographer whose "World's Illusions" was widely read on this continent during the middle twenties. He made many waiking tours of the Tyrolean Alps and was well acquainted with the valleys, towns, people and

The legend takes place in 1614, in Goldreinan imaginary place, but it could be any one of the numerous Tyrolean villages hidden away in the valleys. There the people have little changed over the centuries, and even today their customs and outlook are almost the same as the date of the story. No railway connects them with the cities, and with the roads closed in the winter the villages. and with the roads closed in the winter, the villagers remain shut off with little to do for several months of the year. Often the loneliness of these periods f idle existence makes for brooding and discontent which in turn breeds family feuds, stories and Titled "The Monkey," the play has a Romeo Juliet theme with the principal characters being the son and daughter of two feuding families. The young couple are brought together when a visiting circus-trained gorilla leaps into the crowd and attacks the girl. As expected, the boy comes to the rescue and the pair fall in love, taking refuge from the warth of their families in the surrounding from the wrath of their families in the surrounding mountains. With their disappearance the village s beset with calamities, the worst being a plague which carries off more than half the inhabitants. Fear and superstition become rife, resulting in a drama of suspense leading to an unexpected and startling climax. Ginette Letondal and Christopher Plummer appear in the leading roles.

The concert by Joseph Schull, Sunday night at 11, on CBR, is a deeply moving play bringing into sharp relief, the contrast between the world as it should be and the actual world in which we live, with the vast racial barriers that have grown up. in it. "Dividend" listeners will hear the BBC version of the play, with leading roles taken by former Vancouver actors Bernard Braden and Barbara Kelly.

Ask Commercial Photographers To Aid N.F.B.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's commercial photographers today were asked to join forces with the National Film Board in set-ting up what amounts to a National Film Library.

The film board, in a circular letter to some 1,600 commercial photographers across the country, notes that it has 90,000 negatives on file, "but even if we had 90,000,000, we still wouldn't have enough."

It invites the commercial men to send it contact proofs of their work, to be placed on file in a central clearing office here.

Suppose you want a picture of Rocky Mountain goats fighting, or of a hydro development in northern Quebec.

Instead of beating a path to a dozen or more sources throughout the country and winding up, northern Quebec. possibly, with an inferior set of photos, you simply go to the N.F.B. library.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE

Attendants check through files and come up with copies of any thing that has ever been taken of Rocky Mountain goats or hydro-developments. And you take your choice.

To build up a national library, the Film Board is interested in buying photo stories, or the rights to them—if the photogra-pher wants to sell. If it buys, it would distribute the photos in Canada and perhaps abroad, crediting the photographer.

The library is the brain-child of Jack Hughes, executive pro-ducer of the N.F.B.'s still photo division. He hopes, in four or five years to have 1,000,000 or so prints in the fireproof base-ment of the board's Sparks Street division.

The film board has only three staff photographers to cover all of Canada. Its policy is to use commercial men whenever pos-sible. The library or central clearing house would mean the N.F.B. wouldn't take pictures of ton July 23. something already adequately covered.

A sudden hemorrhage, even a nosebleed, will bring on anemia. It if is not repeated, however, the blood is usually replaced rapidly. But if attacks of bleeding are repeated at frequent intervals as the sum of t repeated at frequent intervals, a severe anemia may result. The attack on this kind of anemia is not only to give iron preparations which enter into the hemoglobin, but even more important to identify and stop the attacks of hemorrhage. In many cases it turns out to be quite a problem to track down where the loss of blood is coming from because it may be gradual and in small amounts rather than sudden and profuse. But anemia can come from many things besides loss of blood. Some get anemic just because they do not get enough iron in their food. There is also a form known as primary or pernicious anemia, the cause of which is not known. Illicit Drug Sales Zooming In West U.S.

DENVER (UP) - Arrests for the illicit sale of narcotics Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico and Utah have increased 33 per cent in the past 18 months.

Terry Talent, chief of the Federal Narcotics Bureau here, said that in the first five months of this year, more drug peddlers were arrested than in all of 1949. "There's no aparent reason for the increase," Talent said.

There were 128 arrests for pos session and sale of marijuana and other narcotics in 1949, and in 1950 the total went to 175. There were 106 arrests for narcotic violations in the four-state district in the first four months of this year and "about 25" were made in May, Talent said.

Most of the arrests involved marijuana, but the narcotics agent said the problem of heroin is on the increase.
